Howard Beissinger 1923-2018

by Dean Hoffman

Howard F. Beissinger, 94, a member of the Harness Racing Hall of Fame for 44 years, died February 6, 2018 in Hamilton, Ohio.

Born on May 23, 1923 on the family farm near Hamilton, Beissinger died only a few miles from where he'd been born.

He won the Hambletonian, America's greatest trotting classic, three times, earning the nickname "Hambo Howard." He enjoyed international fame, and raced across the United States and Canada as well as at tracks in Russia, Germany, Sweden, Italy, and elsewhere.

He was also a member of the Ohio Harness Racing Hall of Fame and the Butler County (Ohio) Sports Hall of Fame.

He was known for his tough, no-nonsense approach to his profession. His unfailing attention to

He is best known as the trainer and driver of the great trotter and stallion Speedy Crown. Speedy Crown was foaled in early 1968 and raised on the Beissinger family farm in Hamilton.

In 1971 Speedy Crown won the Hambletonian in straight heats and went on to a breeding career that would make him legendary in the world of trotting.

Two years earlier, Beissinger had won his first Hambletonian with Lindy's Pride, a colt that overcame faulty hooves with his speed and competitive spirit. Beissinger drove him to victory in the trotting Triple Crown---Yonkers Trot, Hambletonian, and Kentucky Futurity---in 1969.

always said was the fastest trotter he'd ever driven.

Beissinger learned the horse business from his father, who farmed and raced a few horses in the summer.

After World War II, when Howard told his mother that he planned to make horse racing his profession, she greeted the news with tears. Her son achieved success quickly, however, becoming one of the leading drivers on the tough Chicago racing circuit. His abilities and his work ethic drew notice and he began to attract the support of prominent owners.

In 1955, he married the former Ann Wingers. They were divorced in 1999.

In the mid-1960s Beissinger earned the confidence and patronage of the Antonacci family of New York, a partnership that lasted for decades. For the Antonaccis and partners, Beissinger developed and raced countless stakes winners. Howard's peers in the training fraternity admired his mastery of all aspects of horsemanship.

For decades he campaigned a stable that competed with success in the sport's largest stake races. In 1984, Beissinger entered four trotters in the Hambletonian, but decided to find other drivers for all four horses so that he didn't show favoritism to certain owners.

In 1987, he drove Defiant One to victory in the Breeders Crown in Toronto, Ontario at age 64, and he is still the oldest driver ever to win a prestigious Breeders Crown event.

For a half-century, he was also involved in rodeo and traveled across North America to visit rodeos and connect with his cowboy friends. His daughter Vana was extremely successful as a barrel racer in rodeo.

Beissinger produced rodeos throughout the Midwest in partnership with Don Hight, a South Dakota cowboy Howard greatly admired.

Race 5 News

Beissinger was well known in the rodeo world to the cowboys and cowgirls, as well as stock contractors and officials.

In many ways, Beissinger personified the Cowboy Way: he was strong, independent, and resilient. He was up every day before dawn to start work, and his associates marveled at his energy and work ethic.

Beissinger was fearless in pursuing his passion for adventure. When he became interested in rodeo, he took up steer wrestling, an event in which the cowboy jumps from a running horse onto the back of a running steer and wrestles it to the ground. This event is often called "bulldogging" and it's most appealing to young men who feel invincible, but Beissinger began steer wrestling when he was in his 40s. He earned the nickname "Bulldog Beissinger."

On his 80th birthday, he went para-sailing off the coast of Florida. A decade later on his 90th birthday,

Right now, though, Wildharber has a horse. Her name is Worldofrockzee and she is one of the queens of the fair circuit. Last year at the age of 2, the homebred filly pacer won four of 11 starts, including the Kentucky Fair Stakes championship, and earned $19,372 in purses.

"It was a great year," said Wildharber, whose harness racing operation is made up of two horses: Worldofrockzee and her dam, Cara Mia Hall.

Cara Mia Hall was Wildharber's first horse, and she came into his life as a gift. Literally. An acquaintance gave the filly to Wildharber soon after she was purchased as a yearling in 2005. her to Jack and he's going to get her ready. We're going to try to race maybe in Ohio a little bit before the fairs start.

"Maybe we'll be good and ready and win all the fairs this year," he added, laughing. "That's the hope."

Wildharber said Worldofrockzee filled out during her time off, but had not changed in other ways.

"She's still mean as ever," he said. "You just have to make her think she's getting her way even though she's not. She's pretty headstrong."

Wildharber, who works in a power plant, says harness racing is a hobby, but a big part of his life.

"I have a lot of good friends that I've made over the years through horseracing," Wildharber said. "Jack Gray is like my second dad. We talk every couple days. I've really bonded with a lot of people through the horseracing."

Individual Recap Last Race Footnotes

MATTADOR D
Led from gate, soon 3rd behind top pair, tipped out late last bend, photo'd for 3rd. Rail, tighter now?

ARMY OF ONE
Sped to top, brushed back past quarter, braked to lane, unable to fend off pocket foe. Back inside. Mooney's choice. Obvious threat.

DARK PRINCE
Led into turn, tracked to last bend, slid out behind winner, didn't keep up, faded late. Segues from claimers. Adds Tony.

HOWTOTRAINURDRAGON
Away well, tracked top pair whole trip, driven, no rally. James returns. Third start back angle.

PL JALAPENO
Off gate pair, asked leaving, at back whole trip, some last turn traffic, not loaded late. Drops. Better post. Adds Ryan.

REAL BUZZ
First over far turn, cover late in the bend, urged to eke out show slot. Has some speed if he wants to use it.

CENALTA ECLIPSE
Settled in for soft trip to the lane, followed rival into str, 3 vying for 3rd. Adds Steve. Needs some live cover.

Race 11 News

Worldofrockzee, who last year was seventh, beaten by five lengths, in her only start in the sire stakes, will again look to rock the fair circuit in 2018. The fair program, administered by the Kentucky Colt Association, offers purses of $5,000 for each race in seven preliminary rounds and $15,000 for each final.

The Kentucky Sire Stakes and Kentucky Fair Stakes have both enjoyed resurgences thanks to a change in eligibility requirements to permit foals out of "resident mares" to compete regardless of where the stallion stands. This season marks the second year of racing under those conditions. Worldofrockzee's sire, World Of Rocknroll, was standing stud in Ohio when bred to Wildharber's Cara Mia Hall in 2014.

"We're going to focus on the fairs," Wildharber said about Worldofrockzee's 2018 schedule. "For the money they're going for, I just can't not go for the fairs."

MACHABYEBABY
Stuck at back to half, moved up with cover, not a good flow, angled wide, fair late interest. Back inside. Big plus tactically.

WESTERN DEVIL
Left to protect, burst out far turn, right by leader, caught deep in drive, best of the rest. Fair form. Shares?

HAPPY HEATH
Sent under urging, quarter moved, attacked last bend, little resistance. Adds Rene for this.

HE GRINS AGAIN
Left 3wide to midturn lead, yielded, squeezed out 3/4s, driven, even. Steve's choice. Post relief noted.

HARRY FREDRICK
Well back early, 1st over half, didn't advance much, fair late, Fresh Lasix noted. Willie's choice. Slice maybe.

WEST FOR GOLD
Led into turn, yielded, tracked to final bend, angled out, urged, 3 across late. James chose. One more user.

BUZZ LIGHT
Looped leaving, tucked mid turn, traffic into lane, mild urging, safely 3rd. Moves outside, still can play.

CRASH AND BURN
Reserved to far turn, tipped out, didn't advance, urged in str, exploded late, up. Form okay. Plan from #8?

LAISSEZMOIPICOLER
Sped to pocket, stalked to lane, away in hand, wow. Confidence builder? Adds Ryan tonight.

MAJOR JESSE
Out near half, followed top pair's cover to lane, even late. Now #10 to overcome.
